

Future Leaders Development

Executive Education

WITS
UNIVERSITY

Are you a new manager, or find yourself in a leadership position for the first time? Would you like to build confidence and fast-track your integration into the workplace?

Many young people today are entering the work place without the advantage of living and mixing in a modern first world city. Often these employees hold a technical position, which is insufficient when entering the leadership realm, as they are unsure of their ability to integrate and make their mark. WBS has been putting together courses for new managers for many years, specifically to help these first time managers integrate into the workplace in a seamless and speedy manner.

Wits Business School Leadership and Coaching Development presents a block release short course:

Future Leaders Development

Who is it for?

Junior managers who need to consolidate their knowledge and skills and build confidence in preparation for future leadership roles.

How will you benefit?

You will improve your self-confidence, have a strong grounding in communication and problem solving, and consequently gain better leadership potential.

How will your organisation benefit?

Your organisation will benefit by having confident leaders who understand the functional responsibilities of management, and have learnt the art of people management.

Course structure:

Block release, full-time.
